I fully expect to wake up one morning soon and the Twitter app just doesn't load on my phone.

In memoriam: what was your favorite day on Twitter?

Twitter is genuinely helpful when battling cancer. You spend lots of time waiting or unable to move while getting poisoned. When you have chemo-brain it's hard to concentrate but it's easy to make jokes. And it helps you laugh and reminds you not to take it too seriously.

So, a shipment of crickets for the lizard arrived via FedEx today. It was my first time ordering bulk crickets off the internet, and I naively assumed that they would be in like, a bag or some other contraption to facilitate easy transfer to another container. They were not.
