Defunding the police doesn't seem so radical when you realize that the NYPD spends $762 million just on overtime. In just one year.

This really good piece break the obscene NYPD overtime spending down in multiple ways. Worth a read and also worth showing folks who aren't aware of this glut

It's the biggest scam in America, NYPD budget.

Meanwhile, NYC's summer youth employment program - a program that *actually decreases crime* - gets only a third of that figure.

It's appalling.

Sounds like they're underfunded and understaffed if they need that kind of budget.

That's approx $22,000 per P.O. (I believe there are 35K cops in NYPD) or $423 a week.

That is indeed extremely excessive. I'm in the Netherlands, a country roughly comparable to NY state in size, and our police spend €44m in 2021 in overtime, and that was deemed exceptionally high due to enforcement of the corona measures/demonstrations.

"Defund the police" is & always was a losing proposition, if only b/c it sounds vaguely destructive. Take the same general idea, divert funds to better suited operators like, mental health care professionals, but call it "help / relieve / back up the police", & you're good to go.

LOL let's just call it re-funding the police, and take the overtime pay and give it to social workers/counselors/EMTs to respond to situations w/out guns.

I wonder how urban police unions would react if you told them, yes, we can hire more cops for the force, but, in exchange, no more overtime, or, at very least, a hard cap on overtime/total OTE per officer.
